The new editorial team of the Revista de Historia Económica - Journal of Iberian and Latin American Economic History is pleased to announce the publication of the first issue of 2006.

This first issue, which will be available in late June, includes a global history approach to the impact of trade relations in centre and periphery, as well as articles in which convergence, industrial policy and energy sources are analysed in a comparative framework. Latin America becomes one of our points of reference alongside high quality articles focusing on Spain's economic history. Aspects of industrial history and history of economic thought are tackled and we also offer an innovative article about the international impact of Spanish economic journals.

We are confident that the regular publication, three times per year, of a high quality journal containing articles in Spanish, English and Portuguese will be popular with our current subscribers and with a broader audience. We trust the journal will become an increasingly attractive forum for the publication of original work.

The editors, who will be working closely with the editorial board, invite you to participate in this new initiative of the RHE-JILAEH.
